Dr. Edmonds:

My name is Joelle Renstrom, and I'm the instructor/coach of the WMU Mock Trial team. We're currently looking for members for the 2007-2008 season and I thought I'd contact you, as you likely have access to students who are considering going to law school.

Mock Trial is a great activity for those considering a legal career, as well as those who want to practice public speaking. We get a case and students prepare the lawyer and witness roles for both the prosecution and defense. We essentially go to court against another school and try our side of the case against theirs. It's a great way to gain confidence, have fun, get exposure to areas of the law before law school, gain contacts in the legal community, etc.

Students can participate in mock trial as an extra curricular activity, or take the mock trial class for credit through the Poli Sci dept. There's also an honors section, so students can get honors credit for the class as well.

We're looking for a few more members for this year, and the sooner we get people the better. If there's any way you could let people know about this opportunity, especially before registration for next semester, we'd really appreciate it. Anyone who wants to be involved, whether in the class or as an extra curricular, would benefit from getting involved now. I'm more than happy to speak to anyone interested.

Our website has more information: www.wmich.edu/mock-trial

Thank you for your time, and if you have any questions or suggestions about reaching prospective law school students, please let me know.
