

Collegiate Objective

Through out my college experience I hope to learn and discover new things for my career. My major is Aviation Flight Science. I want to become a pilot. I have wanted to become a pilot since I was in middle school. I love to fly. I have been employed at a small airport in Ionia, MI for about five years now. Once I found out about Western Michigan University and their aviation program I knew that Western was where I was going to college. My goal at Western is to study hard and receive good grades, because if I have good grades that will help me later on when I am trying to get a job flying. I have a good work ethic and I know I can complete college with no problem. When I graduate I am not sure what exactly I will be doing. My actions after college will depend on how I will look at things at that time. Some options I have come up with are work in Ionia for a few years and then work my way up to commercial flying or maybe go in to the Air force or some military branch to further my opportunities as a pilot.

Also in my college years I plan to learn more about people and myself. I will learn many things that may even change my life and change it for the better. I think that when you are in college you do a lot of growing up and become a more responsible adult. I don't know about everyone else but I would rather be a kid all of my life. On the other hand growing up is an everyday process and we have to deal with it accordingly. I hope that college will help me become a well rounded individual that is ready to take on the world.
